From Their Excellencies:

Brisk and breezy greetings to the snow-covered populace of Marinus!

We are pleased beyond measure to congratulate Mistress Oda on her induction into the Order of the Laurel. Her amazing works in fiber arts have been a jewel in the kingdom and barony. It's wonderful to see her recognized.

Also, Lady Vittoria did herself, her household, and her barony proud at Tourney of Ymir by selflessly volunteering to direct parking for the majority of the day. She did so without being asked and with a warm smile on her face despite the chill in the air. Much love and thanks to her!

The Company of St. Aiden will be holding a fighter practice on March 7 at the Silverleaf Estates in Clarksville, VA. If you are planning on fighting at Pennsic, this is a wonderful opportunity to learn melee tactics. Let Us know if you plan on going or are interested.

We are beginning to research new baronial coronets. The current coronets were first used to invest Arnbiorn and Hrothny in 1997, making them 18 years old. Metalsmithing technology has come a long way and would allow for lighter, more adjustable regalia for whoever needs them. This will not be a small purchase, so fundraising will come into play again. But the first step is to figure out what the barony wants.

We hope to see many of your at Tir-y-don's baronial birthday and investiture on March 28. It will be a lovely day to help our neighbor's celebrate their new baron and baroness stepping up.

Thank you all for your hard work over this dreary winter. We are looking forward to warmer weather very soon!

Lion and lambily yours,
Aradd and Isabel

From the Chronicler:

The Tournament of Ymir behind us, March upon us, and the warmth of Springs begins its long awaited return. Soon the days will turn longer and the trumpets of war will be upon us!

For those inclined, Pennsic is thoughts and dreams rise with the daily temperatures as tax returns and potential weigh in the minds of our noble populace.

If you have never been, it is the greatest SCA event EVER. Merchants, battles, classes, parties, new friends, old friends, camping, and simply: The Experience! For more information visit <http://pennsicwar.org>.

This issue is the first to publish event reporting (Ymir). I pray you will pay it heed as it mentions some of our very own recognized in Our Majesties court.

I will soon be requesting personal, mundane as well as SCAdian, information to be included in a new edition of the baronial directory. Participation is voluntary, though encouraged. To be listed, you MUST complete and submit a permissions form, which will also be published in the next newsletter, granting authority for use of your information in this great publication.

Lastly, I am still away working a contract with our cousins in the East Kingdom. The work is filled with many tasks and may be extended thourhgout a greater part of this year. I ask to please bear with me in my timeliness of publication of this newsletter and the upcoming directory.

To each and all, you are missed and in my thoughts as I await the day of my return home.

Royal Court Report - Tourney of Ymir XL

Royal Court Report
Tournament of Ymir XL
February 28, 2015

Unto Your Majesties Michael and Seonaid, King and Queen of Atlantia, Your Highnesses Logan and Esa, Prince and Princess of Atlantia, and the good Populace of the great Kingdom of Atlantia does Cian Triton, Principal Herald of Atlantia, send greetings!

On Saturday, February 28, A.S 49, known in the modern world as 2015, The Tournament of Ymir XV was held in the Barony of Windmaster's Hill.

Despite the threats of bad weather, and the snowfall that occurred several days previously, the weather for the event was cool, but pleasant, the roads and sidewalks were clear, and it was obvious that the Autocrat and his staff had worked long and hard to make adjustments to their plans as needed to bring off this event successfully.

In the morning, Her Majesty processed into court, along with Their Highnesses Logan and Esa, Prince and Princess. A Royal Court was opened, and Her Majesty welcomed everyone, thanking them for braving the uncertainty of the weather, and assured them that the autocrat had things under control, and that all would be well.

Lady Sophia the Orange was summoned into court, where Her Majesty invited the ever exuberant Lady Sophia to make an announcement. Lady Sophia spoke of a wine auction that would be occurring throughout the day, and encouraged anyone present who would be interested in a wine party to come by and bid in the silent auction.

Following Lady Sophia's departure from court, Her Majesty had the Order of the Laurel summoned before Her. Queen Seonaid commented that the Order had not followed her instructions, as there appeared to be someone missing. An emissary was sent forth to fetch Lady Oda Wislage dicta Widoeghe before the thrones of Atlantia. Her Majesty spoke to Lady Oda about her wonderful work, and said that Their Majesties were pleased to set Lady Oda on vigil to contemplate elevation to the Order of the Laurel. Their Highnesses escorted a stunned Lady Oda from court to her place of Vigil.

The Triton Principal Herald announced that he had business with the Queen, and begged permission to come before Her. Her Majesty invited Cian Triton to come around to the front of the thrones, where he informed Her Majesty that, while he was enjoying his tenure as Triton, he had one herald who was proving to be difficult, and since he couldn't handle this herald, he asked permission to bring this herald into court to face the Queen's Justice. Cian Triton then proceeded to scan the assembled populace, and then zeroed in on his target, Barunin Gisela vom Kreuzbach. Although Barunin Gisela was surprised at this, she had the presence of mind to grab a tin of homemade cookies to offer Her Majesty as penance...or a bribe. Her Majesty informed Barunin Gisela that because of her works of service to her Barony, her Kingdom, the Atlantia College of Heraldry and Scribes, and the Society College of Arms, it was Their Majesties intent to place Gisela on vigil to contemplate joining the Order of the Pelican. Her Majesty then granted the Triton Herald permission to summon the College of Heraldry and Scribes of Atlantia to line the route to the place of vigil, where Her Majesty escorted Barunin Gisela.

Royal Court was closed for the morning.

During the day, Their Majesties did hold several field courts, where They recognized worthy individuals.

Their first stop was to the rapier battle field, where Their Majesties had the Order of the White Scarf assembled before Them. Their Majesties then had Lady Letia Thystelhueyt brought before Them, where They inducted her into the Order of the White Scarf, in recognition of her skills both on and off the field of battle. A lovely scroll and white scarf were produced for Lady Letia.

The following two field courts, I was not present at, so I can offer no further details.

Their Majesties did induct Lord Maxamilion Brudder into the Order of the Sea Dragon.

Their Majesties did induct Lord Benjamin Lilje into the Order of the Sea Stag.

In the evening, following the Baronial Court of Their Excellencies of Windmaster's Hill, Their Majesties did process into court, accompanied by Their Highnesses, and took Their thrones amidst the assembled Landed Barons and Baronesses, who were already seated.

After bidding the populace to be seated and to pay heed, Royal Court was opened, and Their Majesties welcomed the populace warmly.

It was then Their Majesties desire that one of the youth of the Kingdom, Alexander d'Este, come before Them. Their Majesties were pleased at the reports They had heard of young Alexander's service, and were thus inclined to give him the award of the Hippocampus.

Alexander was then sent to fetch his father, Lord Vincenzo d'Este, and bring him into court before the King and Queen. Her Majesty commented on Lord Vincenzo's arm, which was obviously in a state of injury. Lord Vincenzo responded that it had been inadvertently broken during a battle with a Duke of the Kingdom, to which His Majesty Michael nodded and sympathized. Their Majesties were impressed with Lord Vincenzo's skills on the fighting field, as well as his carefully crafted plan to get back into fighting shape as soon as possible, and thus were moved to give him the award of the Silver Osprey.

Lord Crispin Anthwyr was called into court, where he was inducted into the Order of the King's Missiliers in appreciation for his skill and work in archery.

Her Majesty made a general announcement about the Tournament of the Golden Rose, which is being held in the Barony of Caer Mear on April 18. Her Majesty invited any who wished to participate to seek out a Lady of the Rose, for there were still team spots available.

William Garrett was summoned from the Kitchen, where he was helping out. He was literally carried into court and deposited in front of Their Majesties, who commented on the problem They had finding an award for him, as it appeared that he had most of the youth awards. So, it was Their decision to give William Garrett an Award of Arms in recognition for his service, which he is well known for.

The Order of the Laurel was summoned before Their Majesties, and Lady Oda Wislagre dicta Widoeghe was escorted in. Their Majesties confirmed with Lady Oda that it was still her desire to join the Order of the Laurel. The Four Worthies then spoke highly of Lady Oda and her work in the field of Viking research and arts. I believe the comment was made that "if you wish to have an authentic, period encampment, invite Oda to camp with you, and she will make it happen". A cloak and medallion were presented, an Oath of Fealty was sworn, and Mistress Oda was invited to greet her order as loud cheers reverberated throughout the hall.

Lady Heather Hrafnisdottir was called into court, where Their Majesties spoke of her work with A&S and Equestrian activities, and thus They felt it appropriate to give Lady Heather the Opal.

Lord Jonathan Blackbow was called into court to make an announcement regarding the upcoming War Practice being held by the Sergeants of St. Aiden on March 7 in Clarksville, VA. All martial disciplines are invited and encouraged to attend.

Lady Jdeke von Kollberg was summoned into Their Majesties presence, where she received the Award of the Fountain in recognition of her fine work as an Exchequer.

Lord Gawin Kappler was commanded into court, to receive from Their Majesties the Coral Branch in recognition of his works with Garb and other activities.

Her Majesty bade Their herald to make an announcement on behalf of Her Grace Duchess Kalisa, Kingdom Chatelaine. There are some changes in the Regional Chatelaine offices. Mistress Livia of Ravenswode is stepping down from her position as the Northern Regional Deputy Chatelaine, and Lady Eleri Vwyn will be stepping up to fulfil that position. Lady Amira of Raven's Cove will be assuming the job of Southern Regional Deputy Chatelaine, and Mistress Mary Isobel of Heatherstone will be stepping up to the Emergency Deputy Chatelaine for the Kingdom.

Lord Vlad Iliescu was called forth into court to receive the Silver Osprey for his fighting abilities.

The children present were invited into court, where Her Majesty had them practice their bowing and curtsying before the Crown and the assembled Baronages. The Royal Toy Chest was brought forth, and the children were allowed to choose a toy. Some of them are destined to be future archaeologists, as they were doing some serious digging in the chest to find the perfect toy.

Baroness Katerina Peregrin was summoned before the thrones of Atlantia to receive the Award of the Fountain in recognition of the service she gives to her barony and her kingdom.

Baroness Bessenyei Rozsa was commanded to appear before Their Majesties, who expressed their appreciation for her work with siege weapons, and They inducted her into the Order of the Yew Bow.

Lord Ibrahim of Windmaster's Hill was called into court, where Their Majesties spoke of hearing news of the service he renders, and thus They were pleased to raise him to the ranks of the nobility by awarding him arms.

Sigurd Njord was surprised to hear his name called by the herald, and he nervously came forth to kneel before Their Majesties. The King and Queen spoke of hearing good news of his service to his Barony, and they were glad to raise him to the ranks of the nobility by awarding him arms as well.

Lady Vittoria Cavalieri was brought forth nervously into the Royal Presence, unsure of what she had done. Their Majesties quickly put her at ease by letting her know that They had heard much good about her, especially how she arrived on site, saw nobody working the parking, and took it upon herself to take control of the parking situation and assist people in navigating and parking on site. This greatly pleased Their Majesties, that one of Their subjects would be so kind and giving of her time, and thus They awarded her an Opal in recognition of that service.

Solomon Grey was summoned to come forward from his seat on the first row, and as he knelt before the Queen, he learned that Their Majesties wished to award him arms in recognition of his service. A very humbled Lord Solomon thanked Their Majesties, and then asked for a simple request. It seems that the ambient noise level in the hall had grown to the point where people on the front row were having trouble hearing what was happening in front of them. Her Majesty thanked Lord Solomon for bringing that to Her attention, and thus Her Majesty requested that the populace in the audience lower their volume, and She promised to raise Hers so that all could hear Her words.

Lord Jaume de Monco was commanded to appear before Their Majesties, where he was given a Sea Dragon in recognition for his skill on the rapier field.

Their Majesties had the Autocrat invited into Their court to speak of the events of the day, and announce the winners of the various competitions. Prizes were given out, and it was learned that over 500 people came on site for the Tournament of Ymir, setting a new record.

As the autocrat, Lord Adlerich Falke, was preparing to return to his seat, Their Majesties stopped him. They were quite impressed with the work that Lord Falke and his staff had done, especially considering the weather concerns. Many last minute changes had to be made, and they were made well, for all who attended enjoyed the event. Their Majesties were especially pleased to give Lord Adelrich an Award of the Herring for his excellent job autocratting Ymir 40.

The Order of the Pelican was summoned to attend Their Majesties. Once the Order was situated, Barunin Gisela vom Kreuzbach was commanded to be brought forward into court. Having received confirmation from Barunin Gisela that she wished to join the Order of the Pelican, Their Majesties had the Royal Herald call for comments not only from the 4 worthies (Chivalry, Laurel, Pelican, and Lady of the Rose), but also a member of the populace and a representative of the Society College of Arms. Many fine words were spoken, and more than one pair of eyes developed a leak, including this herald. A cloak and a fine hat were presented to Gisela, a medallion was presented, and the Oath of Fealty was exchanged. Loud cheers (and a few “Baa’s”) were heard for Meisterin Gisela vom Kreuzbach as she embraced her new Order.

Finally, His Majesty the King had a few words to the populace, including an entreaty to assist the Crown in locating a pair of Royal Coronets that have gone missing. These coronets are ones designated for use by the Prince and Princess, and are made up of a set of hinged, silver plaques with golden Fleur de lis at the top. They were last seen in plastic containers (1 coronet per container) with a brownish/reddish top. Their Majesties are not concerned with how they ended up wherever they are, just that they get returned. Please check and make sure that they didn’t get misplaced and accidentally taken home by someone.

There being no further business, the court of Their Majesties Michael and Seonaid, rightful monarchs of Atlantia, was closed, and Their Majesties, Their Highnesses, and Their Excellencies all processed out to loud cheers from the assembled populace.

I would like to add two personal notes, as court herald for this event.

1) It was my honor and pleasure to be able to participate in the elevation of Meisterin Gisela to the Order of the Pelican. She is my teacher, my mentor, and my friend, and I publically thank her former Peer, Master Matsudaira Kentarou Toshiyaki, and Their Majesties for allowing me to have a larger part of the ceremony than the court herald would normally have.

2) On the note of background noise during court. As Her Majesty requested, the populace in the audience should keep all speaking to a minimum so that those assembled in court can hear. Hall acoustics and general noise can cause even those in the front row to not be able to hear much of what is going on. Please remember that Their Majesties or Their Excellencies are recognizing people for their service, their skill, and their art, and it is incumbent on all of us to be respectful of their moment in court.

I confirm that this account is accurate to the best of my knowledge and recollection.

In service to Crown and Kingdom,

Cian Triton
