From Their Excellencies:

Long-eared, fluffy-tailed greetings to Ourhoppingly great populace!

The snow is gone! The bitter cold is finally making a retreat! Warmer days are coming!

And a ton of stuff is on the calendar to keep us all very busy. Coronation is this upcoming Saturday in the barony of Windmaster's Hill. Logan and Esa will be starting Their second reign together and We look forward to an enjoyable summer with them.

The Tourney of the Golden Rose is April 18 and this is a big deal on many levels. First, it's a fantastic event full of pageantry and good company. Second, on a personal level, We both plan on fighting together on Countess Kari's team so this will be His Excellency's return to the field after a long hiatus. Think good thoughts for His shoulder to cooperate. And third, this will be the big push for fundraising the money needed to purchase new baronial coronets (which are still being researched). A million thanks to Dame Hrothny for spearheading this effort. Please plan to come to the event, buy some lumpia for lunch, and help out in any way possible.

Hot on the heels of Golden Rose is another great opportunity for Marinus to shine at the Southampton Renaissance Faire in Courtland. Many of us plan on attending for the weekend and camping to add to the atmosphere. It's a great chance to show off the SCA, meet new friends, and practice camping in temperate weather.

And next thing you know it will be time for Crown Tournament on May 2. Which will mean time for Us to also start planning for Ruby Joust at the end of May.

We encourage anyone interested in autocratting an event to consider a bid for Baronial Birthday his fall. September 26 would be a perfect day, as it's good weather and the same date as the original baronial investiture.

With that in mind and with a heavy heart, We want to let everyone know that We will be stepping down as baron and baroness at this baronial birthday. It will be the end of Our three year term, and while We would love to stay longer, We see many other ways to serve the barony while allowing others to step into this critical role. This means, though, that this upcoming event is a chance for much revelry, pageantry, a visit from royals, and the beginning of new traditions for Marinus.

If you have questions about the baronage position or anything else, never hesitate to contact Us. We bleed blue and green and always want to see Marinus shine.

With love,
Aradd and Isabel

From the Chronicler:

The end of the War of the Roses and the death of Richard III. Is it truly over? Seems the reburial of the monarch, Richard, still provokes deep sentiments, perhaps even hostility, between the notoriously feuding factions.

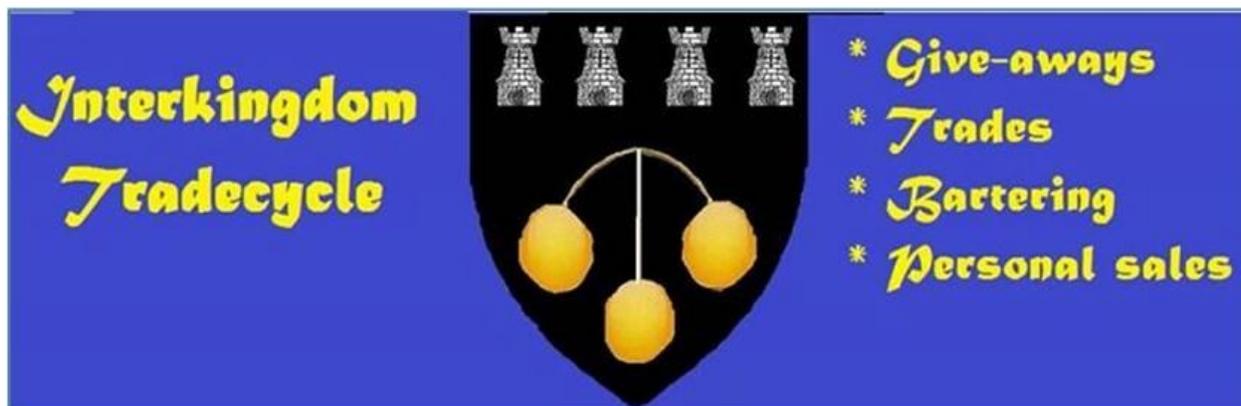

The tug of war that was prelude to Richard's reinternment was something of a media circus, but for this observer the interviews seemed to showcase many modern English citizens to voice some deep and profound thoughts of the significance as to who he was -- and more importantly, how he became king of England.

Where Richard is spoken of there is always the shadows of mystery and rumors of the princes in the tower. Talk of murder, corruption, and his ambitious plan to usurp the throne. The two houses, Lancaster and York, could never be further divided and yet united in their rivalry.

Recently discovered genealogy has shown my family to have descended from Lancastrian lines in England. The timeliness of these facts really brought home the impact and weight of the importance and history that is Richard III.

I pray we all take the time to experience the history unfolding before us.

VIKING BURGER

There were three of us making the trip across the waters that separate our dear cousins to the north, of the lands of Tir-Y-Don, from our family and friends in our beloved home of Marinus, the Barony by the Sea. It is of this very sea, of which is dear to us, that we cross through the mists of early morning fog in our adventure to discover whether the stories are true – that Vikings have not only arrived but settled and are becoming prosperous!

Landing across the waters we immediately found many a cow tipped or taken as the once common landscape of cattle and farms was no more. Industry was evident. Leather scraps, horns for drink, powder, and sound seemed to sprout from the very trees. The people, our cousins were joyful and happy! How could this be if Vikings were near!

We have heard of Vikings before. The ear-logging, the raiding, torture, pillaging, nervous sheep, even the holiest of shrines and their monastic brothers tormented. Even the beer being taken away!

So how can this be that Vikings being so welcomed? We had to find the answers.

(757) 874-1269

Tastes so good that even you might want to sing!

*Im a Viking,
Im a Viking,
So are you,
So are you,
Lets go get a Ragnar,
Lets go get a Freya,
Burgers and Fries,
Burgers and Fries!*

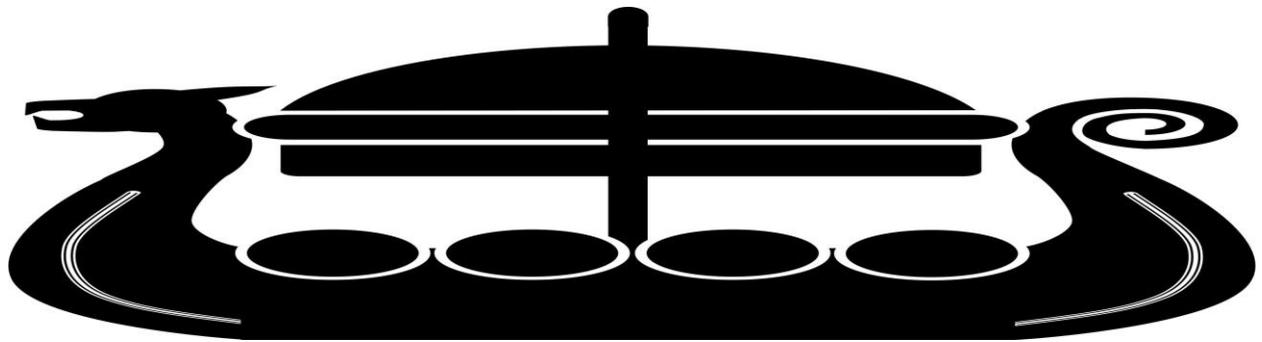

Amazed, we found a yellow, Viking A-Frame hut. Their sail converted to a shop keeper's sign, as a tavern might announce its presence to the traveler. The odors of a kitchen's meats welcomed our senses with a bravado rarely felt. We entered to meet our fate; more eager than fearful, our stomachs and curiosity took the lead.

The food offered was Viking named, and learning their custom was easy with very helpful Vikings giving samples of sauces and detailing their culinary wares. We found their French fries, made by hand, to be extremely good as were their fantastical sandwiches named after heroes like Freya, Ragnar, and Baldar. The onion rings (also VERY GOOD) and especially their sauce overwhelmed us all. If more Vikings like these settle, bring on the Dark Ages!

The service was quick and efficient, after only moments our orders were brought out hot and fresh. The proprietary Viking Sauce was delicious, especially when added to the in-house, homemade fries which they prepare fresh, almost hourly, meeting large demands!

Inside the hall is small, cozy, with a mounted television, and seating for 10 to 12 people. During our visit we noticed timbers being fashioned for additional seating on their grounds which, to our delight, would undoubtedly be a welcome addition once the warmth of coming seasons arrive.

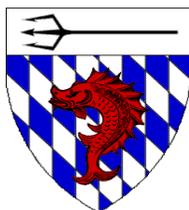

Getting on good relations with one of the warrior chiefs, Dave, we learned the Vikings have yet to give up their wandering, exploratory ways when a glimpse into their planning taught us they seek expanding into the ruins of Rencester and install a burger garrison of much larger and more ambitious services. The rumors of wine and beer, larger inside seating, and other opportunities to draw upon seems to burn hot within these barbarian warriors like the rush of a mighty fire, ever moving, ever growing.

We looked about as we ate and found their barbarity to be non-existent! No wonder our cousins were happy to see them settle nearby! Their hall was clean with fresh paint, well maintained, and decorated with attention to detail. Their generosity of refilling drinks was legendary. Their burgers, sandwiches, and sides were found delicious, filling, and worthy of revisiting.

As our hourglass drained its last grains we found it sad to voice our farewells, vowing to return soon. A visit here was more than a meal at an inn. It was more than a stop at a tavern. It was a pause to share life with new family and friends. We will return. Soon.
